Quarterly Commentary

The US Small-Mid Cap equity market wasn't able to maintain the momentum built in the first quarter of 2015. The second quarter return, as measured by the Russell 2500 index, came in at a subdued -0.3% (or -1.3% for the Russell 2500 Value Index). The Growth segment of the market again topped its Value counterpart last quarter, led by the Healthcare sector and, more specifically, the Biotech industry segment (GICS classification), which is now up a massive 34% year-to-date. In a similar theme, when looking at broad metrics, the top performing SMID Cap stocks last quarter were nonearners with low ROE and no dividend. The lower performing stocks were lower beta dividend payers with higher than average ROE. The Russell 2500 Growth index outperformed Value by almost 190 bps last quarter, extending its year-to-date lead beyond 625 bps.

As for the GW Capital portfolio, we were disappointed to underperform both the Russell 2500 and Russell 2500 Value for the 4th quarter in a row. These past four quarters have been our worst relative performance in SMID Cap since the product's inception in 2006. We are looking forward to putting an end to this dubious streak. As a high active share manager, we have been through extended down-cycles in relative performance in the past and the portfolio has come out of its funk with strength. As we did then, we are sticking to our long-term process with conviction that we can turn around this underperforming streak.

As for attribution to this disappointing quarter, the degree of underperformance and its cause varied by benchmark due to Growth's outperformance driving the Russell 2500 Core to a large gain over the 2500 Value index again.

Starting with Sector Allocation, against the Russell 2500 Value our Sector Allocation delivered positive results and a modest outperformance. The plus side came largely from our slight overweight in the top performing Healthcare sector along with our underweight to the worse performing Utilities sector. A mirror opposite story when comparing to the Russell 2500. Against that index we are underweight Healthcare, making it the largest detractor on a Sector Allocation basis. Our Utility position is slightly above the Core index so we lose the benefit of being underweight that poor performing sector. These two shifts swung our Sector Allocation overall to a modest underperformance versus the Russell 2500.

Nonetheless, against either benchmark, Issue Selection caused the most damage whether comparing to Value or Core indices (although slightly worse against the Core).

We held nine stocks that had absolute return declines in the double-digits. The largest detractors relative to the market were in Financials, Healthcare and Consumer Discretionary. Two of the five largest underperformers for the quarter came in Financials, an area of the market where we have struggled to deliver outperformance throughout these past four quarters of underperformance. Of the nine stocks with double-digit negative returns, four were in the Financial sector. Although we held all of these poor performing stocks at quarter-end, we sold one of them in the first week of the 3rd Quarter. Healthcare is another sector where our holdings have struggled to keep pace with the market. Although we did not have any stock return in the negative double-digits, all of our holdings performed worse than the Healthcare market sector. Finally, in Consumer Discretionary, two of our four holdings were down double-digits last quarter. Aside from the one Financials stock that was sold in the first week of July, we continue to hold all of these underperforming stocks as we retain conviction that better days (and earnings) are ahead of them. On the plus side, we held three stocks with positive double digit returns last quarter. Two of these were in the Energy sector (one was sold in the middle of the quarter) and the other was our only Financials stock to earn a double-digit positive return in the quarter.

Quarterly Commentary

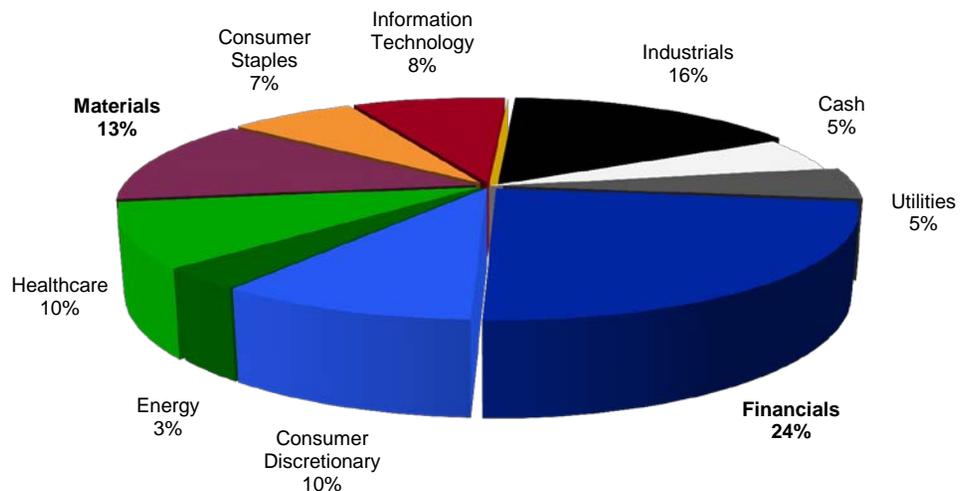

On the transactions front, it was a moderate quarter in terms of new buys and sells. We bought two new stocks and only sold one outright (on the plus side, On the transactions front, it was a fairly light quarter in terms of new buys and sells. We continue to believe that many of the best value opportunities available in the SMID Cap market are already held in our portfolio. We bought one new company (a stock already held in our Small Cap portfolios). We sold two outright. The first, an Energy stock, was sold early in the quarter opportunistically as the sector bounced off its lows. The other, in the Telecommunications sector, was a very successful long-term holding that we felt had reached a valuation plateau. We weren't very active in the adding/trimming area either. We added to only one current holding and did no trimming.

We enter the 3rd Quarter with our previous view still intact: cautiously optimistic. This view is balanced by the modest economic decline seen in the 1st Quarter as the most recent GDP report showed a -0.2% pullback combined with modest strengthening in other key areas such as employment and consumer confidence/spending (i.e. autos). Many pundits see the pullback as temporary given the harsh winter impact on the economy and expect the 2nd Quarter GDP number to be positive again. However, other indications have shown it could be indicative of an overall slowing trend. As always we are watching corporate bond high yield spreads with great interest. A modest but noticeable widening trend has brought high yield spreads closer to, but still below, their historical (25+ years) average. Globally, our economic eye continues to be wary of China, with reports there remaining mixed and the country still in a longer-term, downward trend. Europe continues to have its struggles and the ever recurring problems with Greece aren't helping. Geopolitical risks along with economic and monetary issues behind other major currencies have maintained strength for the US Dollar. Even with the poor 1st Quarter GDP, the US economy remains an oasis of growth, even at such modest levels, among a global ocean of larger declining GDP trends. This combination of good and bad has us maintaining our economic outlook of Two steps forward – One and a half steps back.
